

Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody Recommendation

319. Considerations for review of CDEP Scheme

That in the coming review of the Community Development Employment Projects (CDEP) Scheme consideration be given to:

- a. Improved mechanisms for the combining of funds from different programs (such as the Aboriginal Enterprise Incentive Scheme and the Enterprise Program) to supplement the capital and recurrent funding of CDEP in order to facilitate greater Aboriginal community control over infrastructural components of projects;*
- b. The introduction of a mechanism which ensures that CDEP projects are not used as a substitute for the provision of an adequate level of municipal and other social services, unless funds equivalent to those which would have been provided in respect of municipal and social services are provided to supplement the operation of*
- c. The recognition by the Department of Finance of CDEP as a discrete program with considerable offset savings to the government (in respect of administrative savings from non-payment of Unemployment Benefits), and the automatic provision of the 20% on-cost component--not from the ATSIC existing global allocation;*
- d. The improved policing of payments under CDEP to ensure that all participants in CDEP receive an income equivalent to Unemployment Benefit regardless of work actually performed, subject to the participants' performance of their obligations under the scheme;*
- e. Addressing issues of access to income, and meaningful work activities for women participants in CDEP;*
- f. The enhanced involvement of Aboriginal controlled organisations and resource agencies in the provision of administrative expertise and advice in the operation of*
- g. Improvements in the financial control systems for CDEP and provision for the training of CDEP managers in the maintenance of financial controls;*
- h. Initiatives for the development of ATSIC staff training in negotiation and consultation skills, and in cultural sensitivity, in order to improve the effectiveness and minimise the burden of consultation and support provided by ATSIC to communities on CDEP;*
- i. An improved level of training and planning support for projects, and for the development of medium and long-term plans for CDEP projects which reflect the aspirations of participants for access to mainstream employment opportunities, enterprise development or culturally appropriate work;*
- j. Increased co-ordination between ATSIC and DEET in respect of the training requirements of both new and ongoing CDEP projects, and in relation to the enterprise development potential of CDEP projects; and*
- k. The dissemination of information to Aboriginal communities who are on CDEP or who are planning to apply to receive CDEP funds about successful work programs undertaken by other communities under CDEP.¹*

Background²

The Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody (RCIADIC) identified several financial and operational improvements to increase the benefits of the Community Development Employment Projects (CDEP) Scheme to Aboriginal communities.

The RCIADIC felt that if these issues were considered in any review of the CDEP, then they could be adequately addressed as part of further development and expansion of the Scheme to provide greater benefits to Aboriginal communities and organisations.

319. Considerations for review of CDEP Scheme

Intent	Consider ways to support the operation of the CDEP Scheme to ensure greater Aboriginal involvement and meaningful employment outcomes.
Responsibility	The Commonwealth Government.
Key action taken
2005 Review³	The Victorian Government considered Recommendation 319 a Commonwealth Government responsibility, however the Department of Innovation Industry and Regional Development outlined initiatives aligned with the intent of the CDEP. Department of Innovation Industry and Regional Development The Koori Business Network (KBN) advised that it provided advice and facilitated opportunities for Aboriginal communities and individuals, in the establishment of community enterprises. Through its Growing Leadership Capacity Program, the KBN provided opportunities to look at best practice projects throughout Australia. The KBN advised a more strategic approach needed to be applied to stimulate employment opportunities in industry sectors where potential was identified for industry growth and market demand was strong.
2018 Review⁴	Deloitte considered Recommendation 318 the sole responsibility of the Commonwealth Government as the CDEP Scheme, and rural and regional policy more broadly, fell under their jurisdiction. Deloitte assessed Recommendation 319 as fully implemented by the Commonwealth Government through ongoing processes and changes to the CDEP Scheme and successive programs. Means of addressing issues raised in points (a) (b) (e) (g) and (i) were identified as part of three-year operational plans developed for the CDEP Scheme. In 1995, guidelines for the conduct of spot checks and project reviews were changed to assist in addressing part (d) of this recommendation. Deloitte noted that the CDEP was replaced with the Remote Jobs and Communities Program which was then superseded by the Community Development Program (CDP). The Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet advised Deloitte that the CDP addressed many of the concerns identified in the review of the CDEP including the creation of meaningful activities that support the community; introducing no show no pay to ensure participants are paid subject to meeting their mutual obligations; enhancing the involvement of Aboriginal controlled organisations in the provision of expertise and advice; and improving financial control systems and training for managers.

319. Considerations for review of CDEP Scheme

Since then⁵	The Commonwealth Government committed to change the way it delivers remote employment programs and services by replacing the CDP in two stages: The first stage, announced in February 2024 is the Remote Jobs and Economic Development (RJED) program. The $707 million program is creating 3000 new jobs over three years until 2027. It will support people in remote communities to move into meaningful jobs that communities want, with fair pay and conditions. The second stage of replacing CDP is the design and delivery of the Remote Australia Employment Service (RAES). The Government is investing $1.9 billion over 5 years to support people who are currently looking for work or may need help to get job-ready, with the skills and resources they need. A competitive grants process will open on 30 June 2025 for interested organisations to apply for funding to deliver these services. The CDP does not operate in Victoria.
